Dear Brian,

Please find included a signed document as requested. Please note that I cannot sign the other documents, as I still have not received clarification on the figures that I commented on previously where I noticed that the X-axis was pasted. My suspicion was recently substantiated when Dr. Salari, in communications with Debbie Sigurdson of the Employment Standards Branch, agreed to pay me bonus that is outstanding so long as I cooperate with you. I indicated that I would continue to cooperate, but only required clarification on the two figures. Dr. Salari subsequently refused to settle.

[REDACTED]

Please note, although, that I will happily cooperate with all of the patents, and even the ones in question, so long as communications and documentation are handled ethically. I would hope that this not be viewed as uncooperative, but more that I am exercising my legal and moral rights.

I have never received the letters to which you referred regarding our last communications. I am held to believe that your firm continues to issue patents of which I am an inventor without my signature, or clarifications. If your intentions were to forward communications to me, note that I have not received any.

In as much as I am concerned that Dr. Salari's actions may reflect poorly on your firm's reputation, I must also act accordingly and professionally with regards to publications and patents that are derived from my work, such as communications with the University. But please bear in mind that I still hold a high regard for you, and your firm, and that any communications on my part are for my own protection, and on the advice of my attorney.

Please note that I am moving, and that you may contact me at the coordinates indicated at the head of this letter.

Yours truly,

Christopher Tudan
